

ATTACK ON MANAGUA
PLANNED BY REBELS

DISPATCH RECEIVED FROM THE
AMERICAN MINISTER SAYS
ANOTHER FIGHT IS IMMINENT.

ANXIETY EXPRESSED

No Further Details Have Been Received at Washington And President Taft Is Scrutinizing Telegrams.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Aug. 29.—Anxiety is expressed for Managua in view of a dispatch dated Monday which was received at the state department early today from American Minister Weitzel. The dispatch merely stated that the government had been informed that another battle in the capital would be made by the rebels.

Nothing of later date has been received up to noon today. Copies of all telegrams bearing on the Nicaraguan situation are being sent to President Taft.

The 10th infantry still is in the Panama zone being kept in readiness for duty in Nicaragua.

Upon his arrival at Corinto Commander Washington, who now is the senior naval officer in Nicaragua waters, called into conference a committee representing the rebels. The revolutionary forces acquiesced in the demand for the immediate repair of the railroad between Corinto and Managua and the opening of telegraphic communication.

Much suffering by reason of the great scarcity of food was reported by Commander Washington. As reinforcements arrive at the seat of trouble and between lines of communication are established, details of rebel activity are gradually coming to the state and navy departments.

The rebels' demand for the surrender of the port of Corinto was presented August 12. The counsel at Corinto says a commission of rebels appeared at Corinto on the day under a flag of truce. Francisco Baco who headed the party presented an ultimatum to the federal commander for the capitulation of the town within six hours.

The demand was refused the commander telling the rebels that the protection of the town had been given over to American forces. The following day the same party again appeared.

Then the American counsel assured them that the commander of the gunboat Annapolis was prepared to land an armed force for the protection of the place. The rebels appeared no more.

Adverse criticism of the state department on the Central American policy during the closing hours of the last session of the senate with intimation that an American army would be sent to Nicaragua soon after Congress adjourns are believed by some of the officials here to be the reason which actuated President Taft to revoke the order to send the 10th infantry from the Canal zone to Nicaragua.

All authorities on international law are practically agreed that there is no technical difference between the khaki clad soldiers and the marines or blue jackets, when employed as a landing force in a foreign country. But there is a public sentiment which invariably associates the landing of soldiers with actual warfare equipment and temporality of purpose.

On the other hand marines and blue jackets are so frequently called upon for the most temporary purposes and exigent services as to excite little comment. From a military point of view the only effect of the President's action of last night will slightly retard the sending of sufficient marines to Nicaragua to insure the maintenance of communication between the American legation at Managua and the warships at Corinto seventy-two miles away.

It is not believed that American lives will be in any great danger for the next two or three days as the knowledge of the purpose of the United States to use any necessary amount of force to accomplish its purpose has been announced by minister Weitzel is surely known to the rebel leaders.

Naval reinforcements have been reported as arrived in Nicaragua on the gunboat Denver at Corinto on Tuesday, but the dispatch announcing that fact did not reach here until early today. It also said that the cruiser California was to land about 4,000 marines and blue jackets at Corinto, California Arrives.

The armored cruiser California with Admiral Sutherland on board arrived at Corinto yesterday afternoon, according to a dispatch to the navy department today. After landing a number of blue jackets and marines she left at ten last night for Panama where she is due Saturday. At Panama the cruiser immediately will embark 750 marines which the Pacific is expected to land on the isthmus about that time and will take them at once to Corinto.

INSANE WOMAN WAS TAKEN IN CUSTODY

Claimed To Be Wife of President;
Also Had Long Sharp Knife.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 29.—Caroline Beers, aged forty, who claims to live in Greenville, Ohio, was taken in custody by Pittsburgh detectives at the Southern Hotel while waiting for President Taft with two long knives found concealed in her clothing. The woman said she was the wife of the president.

Mrs. Beers, said she was going to punish the president. She had been noticed yesterday afternoon waiting around the hotel and told employees she was waiting for the president. "I have the sacred knife for President Taft," she told a detective when arrested.

The woman did not get near the president, but was found and rushed out of the hotel just as the presidential party arrived. She was found in one of the upper floors waiting near the elevator on which it was expected the president would go to his apartment.

One of the knives found in her clothing was a long keen bladed affair on the handle of which a picture of President Taft had been photographed. Mrs. Beers was well clad. A roll of $200 was found in her clothing.

President Taft arrived here today facing a program which was expected to keep him busy until late tonight. Although it had been announced that the president's visit was purely social and on account of the Columbus centennial, politicians from all over the state had flocked into the city in apparent hopes of meeting the chief executive. The president's principal address was scheduled to be given tonight at a banquet of the Ohio Bar Association.

He announced, however, his speech would not be on politics. He was greeted at the station by a delegation from the centennial committee and went at once to breakfast. At 9:30 the activities of the day began when he visited the state house.

Here the president was serenaded by 600 vocalists from the Ohio Sanguinists. Later he was taken to the state fair where an informal address was given.

COLONEL ENLIVEN
VERMONT CAMPAIGN

Roosevelt With Henchmen Beveridge
and Pinchot Will Give A Bull
Moose Demonstration.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Bennington, Vt., August 29.—The state campaign now nearing its closing hours the election coming next Tuesday, received an additional impetus today with the arrival of Colonel Roosevelt for a three days stumping tour on both sides of the Green Mountains. A number of progressive speakers notably former Senator Albert J. Beveridge of Indiana and Gifford Pinchot of Washington have been tilling the political soil of Vermont for several weeks. Colonel Roosevelt's activities in the state will take him through the two commercial districts into six large cities and eight of the larger towns.

Attacks Penrose.
An attack on Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania and John D. Archbold of the Standard Oil Company was made here today by Col. Roosevelt in opening his Vermont campaign. Speaking to a crowd in Morgan Park he assailed Mr. Archbold and Senator Penrose for their testimony before the senate campaign contributions investigating committee.

Makes a Comparison.
"We have been saying for some time," said Colonel Roosevelt, "that I was opposed by an alliance between big business and politics and now John D. Archbold of the Standard Oil Company and Senator Penrose trump up to say it is true." The colonel read from the testimony of Mr. Archbold and Senator Penrose before the senate committee and said their testimony "stripped of its verbiage reads not unlike some of the testimony that appears in cases of police protection to the underworld in our great cities."

CITY PLANT MUST FURNISH METERS

Rate Commission Decides Against
City of Manitowish in One Complaint.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Manitowish, Wis., Aug. 29.—Under the decision of the state rate commission Manitowish's city water plant will be compelled to furnish meters to all consumers and to acquire all old meters now in use or to pay the owners thereof a considerable rental. This decision which will cost the city $10,000 to $15,000 was one issue in a petition including three complaints. In the other two the city wins.

The commission holds the city cannot be compelled to furnish free service pipes to the curb as was demanded and also decided to disburse the present rates of the plant. The city has owned the plant less than nine months and the commission holds it must be given a reasonable time to determine what the revenue and expenses of municipal ownership will be.

WILL USE STATE MILITIA
AS PATROL AT THE RACES

Adjutant General Boardman States
Conditions on Which Men May Serve at Vanderbilt Contest.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Aug. 29.—Adjutant General C. R. Boardman has acceded to a request to permit the use of companies of the state militia as a patrol for the Vanderbilt cup race course near Milwaukee, Sept. 1-2. Several companies will be detailed to service, under the following conditions:

The service must be entirely voluntary and must not be considered as under military orders. It must be that of a civilian and not as a member of the militia. For any accident to a member of any company, or any loss, personal or otherwise, one must seek recompense from those in charge of the races, and not from the state. The militia funds are not to be used for such purposes. All men must be searched before going on patrol, in order that it can be shown that they carry only the regular amount of ammunition as used by the regular militia men. Bayonets should not be fixed, and it is better that they do not work at all. The regular service uniforms may be worn. All transportation rates and other arrangements must be settled with those in charge of the races. According to Adjutant General Boardman, it must be understood that the service to be rendered must be of the very best and of such character as not to draw censure or criticism of any kind.

ATTORNEYS ATTACK
RECALL OF JUDGES

It Would Remedy Evils They Say—
Favor Improvements in Court
Procedure and Better Pay For Judges.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 29.—Judges were declared to be "scandalously underpaid" and the delays in settling law suits in this country were attributed to cumbersome methods of procedure rather than to the judges before the American Bar Association today.

"Most of the cities which have started the movement for the recall of judges results from dissatisfaction in the slow way in which cases go through the courts," said Charles Blood Smith of Kentucky. "This is due to the mode of procedure rather than to the judges. It is our belief that the recall of judges is not necessary to remedy the causes which have started the restlessness of the public over judicial procedure. The improvement will be and is being accomplished."

"We should keep our judges from temptation" asserted Henry D. Estbrook of New York. "An occasional judge is found wanting because all judges are human. I am inclined to think that a judge should be permitted no patronage whatever, whereas we are forever thrusting upon them powers of appointment because we want them to show greater ability and undoubted probity. There should not be any perquisites to the judicial office, but in lieu thereof, we should pay our judges salaries worthy of their position. With few exceptions our judges are scandalously underpaid."

"If our people employed the best lawyers, we could find salaries worthy of their position and it would be money well spent. Many a man has become crooked in trying to make both ends meet. As it is, we get infinitely better judges than we deserve."

A dozen barrels of kraut and 1,000 pounds of wieners were consumed at the free dinner, which was one of the big features of the day. Athletic contests and many other attractions filled in the program. Newspaper
Circulation

The circulation of any newspaper can usually be estimated by the amount of classified advertising it carries. These little ads are the market place of the subscribers and the returns they bring are naturally dependant upon the number of people they reach.

Looking at the matter from this standpoint the Gazette offers the people of Janesville a medium that could hardly be excelled. Over 2700 of the 3100 homes of this city are reached by the Gazette each day. Putting your want in the Gazette classified columns means that you are talking to 90 per cent of the people of this city.

HEAVY DAMAGE DONE
BY STORM IN OHIO

Thousands of Dollars of Damage Done by Cyclonic Windstorm and Rain in Warren County.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Lebanon, O., Aug. 29.—A cyclonic windstorm accompanied by lightning and torrents of rain broke at ten last night in Warren county and continued for hours. Although there probably no loss of life the financial loss will aggregate thousands of dollars. The first effect of the storm was to put the Lebanon electric light plant out of commission and plunge the town into darkness, broken only by the blinding lightning flashes. All communication was cut off until daylight when workmen set out to make the most urgent connections. Reports are coming into Lebanon today of damage done throughout the county. Many families had to move from their homes along the north branch of Turtle Creek which was swollen into a river. Two bridges in the northwestern part of the town were washed out. The reports from the country are that barns had burned after having been struck by lightning and many cattle killed. Reports from King's Mills are that the damage there will amount to more than $25,000. It is impossible to estimate the damage that was done to crops in the lowlands adjoining.

Last year the New York legislature appropriated $20,000 to acquire the site and adjoining lands for a battleground park upon which the monument has been erected.

The unveiling was carried out on a scale of considerable pomp and ceremony, military and patriotic societies uniting to make it a day not soon to be forgotten. Governor Dix and his staff were among the honored guests of the occasion. Senator John F. Representatives of reigning houses and of presidents of republics including the United States, joined about the grave with many thousands from the masses.

Delegates of legislative bodies, civil corporations, the army, the navy, business men of all branches, workmen who had sacrificed their day's wages and weeping women and children marched shoulder to shoulder in the great procession which followed the body to its last resting place.

A great gathering of members of the Salvation Army assembled from all parts of the United Kingdom and from many foreign countries met in the vicinity of the Salvation Army city of London today.

The hearse was decorated only with palm leaves placed over the "blood and fire" banner draping the casket. The celebrated battle flag which the General had planted on Calvary was placed at the head of the coffin and as this was done the flags of the foreign deputations and of the English provincial corps dipped in salute.

At the same time the vast crowd recently uncovered. Then the General's campaign cap and favorite bible were lifted onto the platform of the funeral car.

The delegates from the provinces abroad walking slowly to the strains of the "Dead March" from Saul played by forty bands marched past the funeral car. A guard of honor composed of the chief local and foreign officers of the Salvation Army stood at attention around the hearse.

Many of those present especially the women wept as they saluted their dead leader.

Immediately after the hearse a selected body guard of staff officers of the Salvation Army swung into line preceding the funeral of the family who were led by General and Mrs. Bramwell Booth.

The procession was more than a mile long.

As the procession marched through the muddy streets dense crowds of spectators gathered along the sidewalks and bowed their heads in respectful salute.

MISS MABEL ISAAC BECOMES A BRIDE

Marriage To Alva G. Austin Was Solemnized Last Evening—Kneeland-Graham Nuptials.

Miss Mable Isaac, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Isaac, and Alva G. Austin, of the town of Janesville, were united in marriage at the home of the bride's father, 503 Glen St., at eight o'clock last evening.

The marriage ceremony was read by the Rev. T. D. Williams, pastor of the Cargill St. church, of which both bride and groom are members, assisted by the Rev. J. W. Harris, a college classmate of Mr. Austin. The couple who were unattended, took their places in a bower of smiles, ferns and white ribbon in one corner of the parlor. A large white dove hung over their heads and the other decorations of the room were most attractive in green and white.

The bride was charming in a gown of white French voile and she carried a shower bouquet of white roses.

After the ceremony a wedding dinner was served to the guests, relatives and intimate friends of the bride and groom. The wedding party had gone to live with his son at Bloomer several years ago. He was 88 years old. He was a highly respected citizen and leaves a large circle of friends.

One daughter and five sons survive him: Mrs. Roy Clark of Rockford, Ill.; John McCulloch of Bloomer; Alex. McCulloch, Janesville, and David, James and Frank McCulloch of this place.

The remains arrived here this morning and were taken to the home of his son, James. The funeral services will be held from the home at two o'clock and from the Methodist church at two-thirty Saturday afternoon. Interment will be made at the cemetery here.

Kneeland-Graham.

Miss Anna Kneeland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kneeland of the town of Janesville, and George L. Graham of this city were married at noon today at the home of the bride, the Rev. T. D. Williams, pastor of the Cargill Methodist church reading the wedding service. The couple were unattended. A sumptuous wedding dinner was served following the ceremony. The guests from out of the city were: Mr. and Mrs. M. Mulen of St. Paul; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gleason, and Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Gleason and two daughters of Madison. Nearly all present were immediate relatives of the bride or groom. Mr. Graham is employed in the Nichols harness factory. Mr. and Mrs. Graham will make their home on Pleasant street.

Kliefoth-Arneson.

The wedding of Miss Ida Kliefoth to H. J. Arneson was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Kliefoth, Prairie avenue, last evening. The Rev. John Koerner of the German Lutheran church read the marriage service. Mr. and Mrs. Arneson will reside in Janesville.

CALL POLICE TO DISPERSE DISTURBERS AT WEDDING

Boys and Girls Make Themselves Pestiferous in Vicinity Of House On Glen Street.

Boys and girls' desirous of a share of the good things at a wedding at 503 Glen street last night were so insistent in their demands and noisy and boisterous in their conduct that complaints were made to the police and Patrolman John Brown and Frederick drove out to disperse them. When they arrived they found no boys there but a few girls who were trying to get into the house and get some of the wedding cake. The boys had left earlier, having been given a small sum of money, to buy candy and pop. No more trouble was reported.

DID POPE BREAK HIS IMPRISONMENT?

Pope Pius X.

The story has gone forth from Rome that Pius X recently broke the traditional imprisonment of the Vatican. Although the report has been officially denied, the Italian press is divided into two camps, very busy finding and presenting to the public evidence supporting the contradictory assertions. According to the story, the Pope left the Vatican in the dead of night to visit his sister Rosa, who was seriously ill from a stroke of paralysis.

SWEEPING BY HAND MORE SATISFACTORY

Costs Little More Than Machine Sweeping But Gives Less Annoyance to Citizens.

Since the demolishing of the street sweeper in a railway accident about a month ago, Mayor Fathers and the councilmen have been making a careful comparison of hand and machine sweeping, both as to efficiency and expense. Hand sweeping has been found slightly more expensive than mechanical sweeping, but much more satisfactory. When the machine was used, residents along the streets swept made continual complaint that their sidewalks were covered with dust after the sweeper had passed and that they were obliged to sweep them off every morning. Unless this was done, the dust blew and was tracked into the stores in large quantities. No complaints of this kind have been made since a return was made to hand sweeping.

The Council is now considering the adoption of a device which will be a labor and money saver. It consists of a shallow pan and a 30 gallon can on wheels. The pan when full can be dumped into the can by the mere turning of a crank and the can is detachable so that it can be taken out and be replaced by another when it is full. At the present time the sweepers go over every foot of paved street every day. This would not be necessary if this device were used. With a receptacle always at hand it would be necessary to sweep up the droppings only, and to handle them but once, instead of twice as is now required.

AN EARLY RESIDENT OF COUNTY IS DEAD

David McCulloch, Aged 88 Years, Passed Away Tuesday Evening at Home at Glen St.

[SPECIAL TO THIS GAZETTE.]

Milton Junction, Aug. 29.—David McCulloch, one of the old residents of Rock county, passed away at the home of his son, John McCulloch, at Bloomer, Wis., Tuesday evening, Aug. 27. Death was due to the infirmities of old age.

Mr. McCulloch had lived in this part of the county for many years and bride and groom. The dining room was decorated in pink and white as was also the room in which the wedding gifts were displayed. The drawing room was trimmed with yellow autumn flowers and yellow ribbon.

Mr. Austin is a prosperous young farmer residing west of the city. He was graduated from the local high school in '99 and also received a degree from Lawrence college at Appleton. The bride finished a course at the Janesville high school in '07. After a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Austin will reside on the Winthrop farm on Mineral Point avenue. They will be at home to their friends after Nov. 1st.

Guests from out of the city who attended the wedding were, Rev. and Mrs. J. W. Harris, Mrs. Byron M. Jones, a sister of the bride, of Los Angeles, Cal., and Miss Beatrice Whitney of Whitewater.

HELD ENJOYABLE LAWN SOCIAL AT COUNTRY HOME

Circle No. 15 of St. Mary's church held a most enjoyable box social at the country home of Edward Campion in the Milton road last evening. The social was very largely attended and a very neat sum was made by the ladies. The evening was spent in playing different games and all sorts of amusements. The party returned to this city about eleven thirty. The object of these socials is to make a little money to help the church along and as they are a new thing in some of the churches they are doing well.

Scientific Advance.

Dr. Coaraz of the Heidelberg institute for the study of cancer has succeeded in obtaining experimental evidence of the radio activity of various human organs. Experiments were made by allowing the organic matter to act through a wire grating, on a photographic plate wrapped in black paper. Paint radiographs were obtained by twenty-four hours' exposure, the strongest action being exerted by the substance of the brain.

THROWN FROM AUTO BUT ESCAPED SERIOUS INJURY.

While driving a motor car from here to Evansville last Tuesday, Louis McMahon was thrown from the drivers seat in some odd fashion, and was injured slightly. The car at the time of the accident was not going very fast and this accounts for the fact that he was not badly hurt. He was thrown under the car and dragged about thirty feet before the machine was stopped, but received only minor injuries. He will be able to be around again in a few days. Dr. Woods was called to dress the wounds.

"VICTORY SURE," DECLARE WOMEN IN CHARGE OF OHIO SUFFRAGE CAMPAIGN

At the top, Mrs. Harriett Taylor and Miss Kate Gordon; at the bottom, Miss Laura Clay and Maude Wood Park.

September 3 next will be an important day in the history of the fight for equal suffrage. On that day the people of Ohio will vote on a constitutional amendment which if passed will give the women of the Buckeye state equal political privileges with men. If Ohio goes for equal suffrage it is believed that many other states will rapidly follow suit.

Among the suffrage workers in the state who are confident of victory on September 3 are Mrs. Harriett Taylor Upton, of Warren, O., president of the state suffrage association; Mrs. Maude Wood Park, of Boston; Miss Kate Gordon, of New Orleans, and Miss Laura Clay, of the famous Clay family, of Kentucky. These women have all taken a prominent part in the Ohio suffrage campaign.

It All Depends.

"Do drummers really get business by telling funny stories?" "Depends altogether upon the customer," replied the traveling salesman. "Sometimes I tell funny stories and sometimes I abuse the trusts."

THE WILD WEST AND THE FAR EAST SHOW

Young Buffalo-Colonel Cummins Combination Give Interesting Entertainment in City.

Lead by the old time twenty span ox team, with a genuine ox driver with his snapping gad-and the rattle trap old contrivance used in bygone days to traverse the plains, the Young Buffalo and Colonel Cummins Far East show gave their parade shortly after one this afternoon. Late arrival in the city from Chicago, numerous delays at the show lot had prevented an earlier appearance and while many children were disappointed, still there was an interested audience on the streets as the strange cavalcade went by. The outfit is a good sized one, boast of 225 horses, all in first class condition, has numerous elephants and camels and carries with it four hundred people, traveling in forty-two cars. Hindoos, Singhalese, Arabs, Mexicans, cowboys, artillerymen, cowgirls and bands were most numerous. The old Deadwood coach creaked along and a large band of painted Indians in all their war paraphernalia rode pinto ponies and were say with feathers and paint.

The afternoon show was slightly delayed owing to the lateness of the parade but was well worth attending and the big arena was well filled. The shooting was good, the riding excellent and it was truly what it advertised, a wild west and far east combination.

Chiropractic a Great Truth

You Who Are Sick Must Accept It If You Would Get Well

"Truth passes through three stages: First we say it is contrary to common sense. Second, we say it does not make any difference one way or the other. Third, we say we always believed it."

Just as you have accepted all the other great truths of this wonderful century so must you accept the truth of Chiropractic you must accept the fact that

ALL DISEASE COMES FROM A CROOKED SPINE. When your spine is wrong your system can't help but go wrong. When your spine is out of perfect alignment the vertebrae of the spinal column get out of place and pinch the nerves emanating from the spinal nerve trunk and the organ or part which is fed by that nerve shrivels and dies for lack of nerve nourishment. When the vertebrae of the spine are placed in perfect alignment by Chiropractic adjustments Nature sends abundant nerve food along the released nerve and health results.

Chiropractic adjustments are not severe

Packard of Columbus is the champion twirler of the American Association league to date. He has a pitcher's record of .800. Burns of Minneapolis follows close with an average of .767.

Formal challenge has been issued by Kid Williams of Baltimore to Johnny Coulton to fight for the bantamweight championship of the world. Williams has beaten all the bantams except Coulton, and now he thinks he ought to have a chance at the champion himself. Recently he stopped Young Loberg of Brooklyn in seven rounds, a feat Coulton was unable to accomplish in ten rounds in Brooklyn last spring.

Jack Leivelt, former Washington outfielder, has broken into big league company again. He has been hitting close to .400 all year, and Wolverton of the New York Yankees has annexed him. Leivelt always was some hitter, and it wasn't his weakness in this department of the game that caused his retirement to the International. His fault is poor fielding and slowness on the paths, and in these things he has made little, if any improvement. The big outfielder will report to New York September 25.

Pal Moore, the eastern lightweight, who will fight Phil Brock at Cleveland on Labor day, is slated at having been signed with Brock at 133 pounds at 6 o'clock. "That weight will help me a lot," says Pal, "and I feel sure with Brock down in left, almost as low as he can go, I will turn the decision my way this time."

ELGIN RACES TO EQUAL ANY ROAD RACE EVER HELD WEST OF APPALACHIANS; MANY NOTED AUTOISTS ON HAND FOR BIG EVENT.

All is in readiness for the much-heralded road races at Elgin, Ill., on Aug. 30 and 31, and many autoists of international reputation are on hand for the big event. Among those who are counted upon to take a prominent part in the races are David Bruce-Brown, who will drive his new Fiat; Teddy Tetzlaff, Len Zengel, Ralph De Palma, Ralph Mulford, Charlie Merz, Georges Bolliot, and Eddie Hearn.

While prophecies pertinent to speed events are often vain, it is safe to say that the free for all, the feature of the program, will compare favorably with any Vanderbilt cup race heretofore held.

Yankees, who was injured the latter part of June, when he had his wrist broken by a pitched ball from O'Brien of the Boston Red Sox, will get back into the game again on September 1. The wrist has healed sooner than expected. Cree has been working out a little and is anxious to get back.

Joe Kelley, Toronto manager, is giving Rochester a warm battle for the International League championship. His bunch of veterans are going strong.

Jules Vedrines, Maurice Prevost and Andre Frey, French aviators, are on their way to America. They will contest for the International aviation cup at Chicago on September 9.

Frank Kramer, for the last eleven years champion bicycle rider, has practically clinched the championship for another year by winning the recent contests at Newark. He will have to meet the winner of the western races decided at Salt Lake to make sure of his title.

A new leader for the Cleveland Naps next season seems likely unless Manager Davis takes a big brace right away. Cleveland has gone to the bad this season, and it looks as if the manager were to blame.

Owner Somers of the club went the limit to get Davis. New York, St. Louis and the Philadelphia Nationals all wanted him. After four years as captain of the Philadelphia Athletics and the right hand man of Connie Mack, he looked good. But he has been a great disappointment, and the chances are Owner Somers Willing to Die for Companion.

"If you can save the other fellow do so, because he has a wife and children and I have not, and if one of us must die I would rather perish." This was the remark made the other day by William Dietz to men endeavoring to free him and a companion from tons of dirt and rock that had fallen upon them while they were at work in a ditch at Newport, Ky. Both were submerged when one wall of the ditch in which they were stringing telephone wires gave way. The rescuing party had succeeded in removing the debris so the men could breathe more freely, when Dietz, with the above remark, directed them to save Mooney, who, after being liberated, helped to rescue his fellow workman. Neither of the men were badly injured.

Evasively Answered.
"Oh, Mr. Smith," she said, "last night I had such a delightful dream! I positively dreamt that you and I—only you and I, mind—were traveling on our honeymoon. Do you ever have dreams like that, Mr. Smith?" "I am afraid I used to, Miss Antique," he answered, "but now I am more careful over my suppers."

There's no denying that it is man's inalienable right to strike while the temper's hot, so perhaps it'll be about as much as we can expect if, when the millennium rolls around, the ice men have learned to strike only in winter and the coal men in summer.

JUGGLING FACTS.

It is evidently part of the principles of ambitious politicians to so juggle and transpose the facts that the obnoxious features of a law are clouded or obscured beneath what is apparently a wealth of documentary evidence in its favor. It is the skillful trick of the successful politician never to face an issue squarely and fairly but to use a lot of platitudes that tend to confuse the average voter into believing everything is all right.

That the income tax, in its present form, is all wrong, is practically admitted by all the candidates for legislative office. However, but few candidates stand out before the people and demand its repeal. The others prefer to follow the lead of the state tax commission, that theoretical organization, whose power in this respect is created by the law, and proclaim the law almost perfect.

The income tax law is not only a local question but a state-wide issue. It means much for the future of the state. Rock county should not send to Madison men who will blindly follow the leaders of the radical legislation program without due consideration. Careful analysis of the statements of the various candidates should be made and the principles which they stand for be the criterion by which their qualifications be decided.

What is true of Dane county as regards the tax budget, does not follow true in Rock county. Dane county is exploited by the tax commission as a model county; meanwhile they most carefully guard the returns from other counties. Inquiry at the county clerk's office here brings forth the statement that there is a heavy penalty for disclosing the results of the assessment. Meanwhile the tax commission can cull the cream of the Dane county report, make it public, juggle facts, if they please, and give their friends throughout the state ammunition to defeat honest men who are sincere in their endeavors to serve their constituents honestly by watching after their interests.

This game of politics makes funny bed-fellows. Under the workings of the primary law it compels men to stoop to all the tricks of the average ward healer to secure votes. It subjects him to all sorts of annoying situations and in the end the man who may perhaps be the choice of the majority of the voters of the district is eliminated by the skillfully arranged second choice law working to the advantage of the ultra progressives.

The primary campaign closes on Tuesday next and while the exact results may not be known until some days later the voters are urged to cast their ballot with a full understanding of what the men stand for they are voting for. If confused by the so-called second choice vote it is best to leave it alone. It is confusing at the best and the real influence of your vote may be lost through its manipulations.

POWER OF FINANCE.

An exchange comments on the power of finance in politics and shows that the use of money and money power, is not new with the United States, but existed long years before it is refreshing to learn that all the evils in the political situation have come through the machine-mongers of the republican form of government. Take it up in a historical sense he following article explains what I meant by money in politics.

"Ever since the Commons House of Parliament, in the days of the great rebellion, realized the power of the hold over supply in controlling unconstitutional action, the influence of finance in international politics has been steadily on the increase. It was in the question of subsidies that the great commoner found his hold on the apocryphal little German prince, whom the stupidity of the Stuarts had washed up in the throne room of St. James' palace. And when the broad-sheet writers wished to accentuate the agreement between the Bantam Cock and the Cornet of Horse, it was the latter's accommodating spirit in the matter of subsidies on which they unerringly fastened."

"No more they make a fiddle-fuddle About a Hessian boot or saddle. Ten millions, and a vote of credit, 'Tis right. He can't be wrong who said it."

"That was in the days when England was agrarianly a self-supporting country, when from the Beauce to Odessa every country grew its own corn, and international finance was a very simple affair. Today nous avons change tout cela. In the interim, the countesshouse of the Rothschilds had sprung up in the Jews Lane in Frankfurt, with its co-operating offices in Vienna, Paris, London and Naples, and the era of cosmopolitan finance had dawned. There is a way in which cosmopolitan finance may be said to be a blessing, but there is another in which it may be said to be a curse. It has been the former, in so far as it has tended to make war difficult, if not impossible, by reason of the tentacles it has stretched round the treasuries and markets of Europe; but inasmuch as it has, with its allied interests, turned the world into an armed camp, and made peace in the present more extravagant than the war of the past, it has been the latter."

"The fact is that cosmopolitan finance has come to represent certain groups which are so entirely free from any taint of patriotism, that they can say, if one may adapt the phrase of Falstaff, 'The world's mine oyster, and with my prospectus I'll open it.' If it prevents wars, it does not out of love of humanity, but in consideration of its own investments and its markets. At the same time, in order to create those markets and arrange those investments, it brings nations to the verge of war, and supplies them, through its linked industries, with the means of destroying themselves and their neighbors. The Societe des Mines, prospecting in an apparently harmless way in North Africa, succeeded in rousing passions which nearly brought the powers of Europe in collision. The Societe des Etudes, following the same lines in southern Persia, may easily obtain very similar results. The Persians, like the Rifas, are in danger of being convinced by the unanswerable argument of the bullet of the advantages of mining and railway enterprise to cosmopolitan shareholders."

BUTTERMILK BEATS BEER IN PRICE.

Hats off to the gentle, mild-eyed American cow. Buttermilk, at least in one place in the United States, costs more than beer. The place is Warren, Pa., and the price is 12 cents per quart.

Bossy alone is not entitled to the credit for this boost in the price of the churned product of her lacteal glands. A doctor in Warren has been felling the people that the drinking of buttermilk would improve their health.

Warren, Pa., is not, however, the only place in which the use of buttermilk as a beverage is growing. Everywhere, almost, there is an increasing demand for the drink which carries into the system a supply of lactic acid, an important chemical agent, necessary alike to digestion and the proper muscular action. Physicians have learned that this produce of decomposition in buttermilk, its sour taste, is a medicine as well as a food or assimilator of food. Yet buttermilk is not always beneficial. Up to a certain point in the process of decomposition lactic acid is produced; beyond that point there is another product of decomposition or fermentation which is best left out of the human stomach.

But while buttermilk is now drunk for its health-giving properties, can anyone imagine a more wholesome or alluring beverage than buttermilk before it has developed lactic acid and the sour taste? Do you remember going to the spring house, soon after the churning was finished, there dipping from the stone crock a tin cupful of the butter-flecked liquid and pouring it down your heat-parched throat? If you do you will remember also that you seldom stopped with one cupful. Or maybe you remember how you used to drink it gurgling out of a stone jug which you had hid in the hay field. Then as now the American cow was the producer.

Under the law of compensation September ought to be a hot, dry month, such as August usually is and should have been this year. Should such be the case, corn and other crops, that have been given wonderful growth in the past three or four weeks, are likely to mature to the entire satisfaction of the farmer who has worried about the rain. In the long run, it will be found, things come out about right.

One motorcycle girl was nearly burned to death at Gary, Ind., when her clothing caught fire from the gasoline tank. This will probably not serve as a warning to the other maidens who seem to get delight from a bouncing ride on the rear seat, with drapery and veils trailing widely behind.

It would appear as though Senator Ponrose was well able to take care of himself even if Roosevelt would like to see him ousted from the senate. He has told some facts about the strenuous Colonel that the self-same gentleman would like to have forgotten.

The "In Bad" club is receiving many valuable additions to its membership, all names being proposed by its founder and originator, who has the sole registered right to judge mankind—from his standards.

This second choice proposition is bound to fool a lot of voters and if they are wise they will refrain from voting it at all.

Did you ever see a child that did not want to watch a circus parade or go to a circus, and some grown-ups as well?

Some candidates hate to have the truth told about their campaigns and the real purposes of their becoming candidates.

Oysters, it is said, promise the biggest crop in fifty years. Now, watch the price—stay up.

Old Jupiter Pluvius seems to be in need of a plumber.

Lo The Poor Roosevelt! Lo, the poor Roosevelt, whose untortured mind

No hint of Archibald in his gift could find!

Who saw the furs arrive, in sums immense, And didn't think to ask or "why?" or "whence?" Who never dreamed the givers of this wealth Were not in business solely for their health, Or that their parting with their ample store Was not inspired by love of Theodore!

A hundred thousand came? He thought: "This comes From some unknown admirer in the slums; Some humble wight who, toiling day by day, Has saved this contribution from his pay!" Another check arrived, of equal size? He said: "It brings the tears into mine eyes! Some seamstress' plain has sent this royal gift, Or 'ere some newsboy gives 'the cause a lift; Or stay! perhaps some cobbler 'cobbled late To help the campaign with this largest grant; Or 'twas a 'cabby,' full of honest zeal, Who sent this coin his country's ills to heal! Let plutocratic gifts the rest allure, allure, Give me the simple offerings of the poor."

Blest ignorance. And who, unkind would rend The ample veil that blinds our simple friend? Would make him take the knowledge which the coin, And guilt unto the useful gold to join! Ah, who would wake him from the blissful dream That from the poor proceeds this golden stream— That honest workers, filled with good intent, The useful thousands to his coffers sent?

Ah, who his simple ignorance would foil? E'en with the slightest hint of Standard Oil, Or could resolve his happiness to cloud By speaking of the Sugar trust aloud?

And ye, sophisticated ones, who smile At thought of simple Roosevelt's lack of guile, Wise in the devious ways of modern trade, And prone to call a spade a simple spade, Bethink you if, with long experience wise, You could a more effective plan devise! He gets the money and escapes the blame; He earns the triumph, yet avoids the shame; He handles pitch, remaining undefiled He plays the "artful" yet preserves the child.

Say, could you beat it—you and all your peers? The answer's plain: "Not in a thousand years!"

Why He Didn't Strike. There was a large crowd at a beer garden restaurant in upper Broadway at the dinner hour on Sunday evening. Waiters were busy serving all kinds of dishes and drinks popular in such places, with hot sausages and beer far in the lead, when a shrill whistle was heard, and waiters in the act of taking orders and others delivering steaming and foaming specialties responded to the strike signal. One of the three waiters who remained, when all the rest had gone, was asked by a woman whom he had served: "Why didn't you quit with the others?" He leaned over and whispered confidentially: "Dot's like dis. It's better for me I have the union mad at me as de old woman."—New York Tribune.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

By ROY K. MOULTON.

The Burglar. It was near midnight's holy hour, In vain we courted sleep, The shudders was a-dancing round And made our nerves all creep. When suddenly we heard a sound, A soft step on the stair, We gazed into the hall and lo, A burglar bold stood there.

He acted perfectly at home And never noticed us, He went about his business, Without the slightest fuss. He must have known he was observed, Of that we could have vowed, For when he took some of our stuff We chuckled right out loud.

When man-in-law's false teeth he took, We smiled chuck full of glee, This burglar was a kind gazabe, A jolly rogue was he. And when he took Bill's phonograph And dropped it in his sack, We laughed so loud we could be heard To Timbuctoo and back.

He carried off our egg-coo clock And it never more will tell Of our arrival nightly and Sound our domestic knell. We hate from tip to brim, We felt like getting out of bed And shaking hands with him.

He took our parrot and we yelled A loud in fiendish mirth, And then got up and helped him pack. For that that we were worth, We handed him a goodly sum, And made him promise that Whenever he came round this way He'd burglarize our flat.

NOT IN MATRIMONIAL MARKET SAYS DOCTOR

DR. EURRUS SAYS HE IS NOT SEEKING WIFE JUST AT PRESENT, BUT MAY LATER.

HAS SWITCHED LOVE

Thinks "Affinity" Miss Brooks, of Indiana, Does Not Want to Marry. Eut Intimates Helen Gould of New York Might Find Right Man in Himself.

Since receiving his rebuttal from Miss Virginia Brooks of West Hammond, Ind., whom he had selected as his affinity, Dr. A. P. Burrus of Sweet Home, Dr. A. P. Burrus of Sweet Home, and Port Atkinson, intimates that he is not in the matrimonial market at present, but intimates he might be if he could secure Miss Helen Gould of New York for a wife.

"I am not in the market yet," said Dr. Burrus, but I don't know what I might do by and by.

"Why did you write to Rev. Morrill of Minneapolis, if you were not looking for a wife?" was asked.

"Well, I saw what the elder said, in the paper about securing husbands for bachelor maids, and I wanted to help him along, so I wrote to him. I didn't want my name known, but the elder gave me away."

Referring to the affair with Miss Brooks, Dr. Burrus said: "She is a very nice girl, but I don't like her. She is as good as dead."

Dr. Burrus stated this morning that when he arrived here yesterday afternoon from Port Atkinson he found considerable mail at his office here, including fifty letters from Elgin women, and one from a friend of Miss Helen Gould of New York, enclosing a picture of Miss Gould, and a clipping in which Miss Gould set forth her reasons for not marrying, as given in reply to the statement of the Denver pastor who advocated that "all old maids be put on a desert island. The doctor has now directed his affections toward Miss Gould.

"She says she never married because she never found the right man," said Dr. Burrus. "Maybe she might marry a doctor," he continued, with a smile.

The fifty letters from Elgin women, whom he thinks are nurses, asked him to give the dimensions of a standard man, he said. One writer, he says, said she had the handsomest nose in Elgin, and red hair, the color of a sunset. An Elgin widow, who wrote to him stated that she had married two husbands, but desired the description of a standard man, in order that she might pick the one with whom she could live happily.

"I can't take but one," said the doctor. "The Queen of Sweet Home—because I don't keep a harem. Refer them to Rev. Morrill. He has some bachelors with red hair (Red hair according to the doctor indicates persons of a warm loving disposition. "Have you picked any one of them yet?" was asked.

"No. My face is set toward the rising sun, since I got Helen Gould's picture." The doctor also says a proposition to have Miss Gould come here and build a sanitarium for tuberculosis patients on a site in Port Atkinson which he will offer her for that purpose.

The doctor today was preparing a description of the standard man, the perfect specimen, for the anxious ones who are waiting in Elgin, Ill., for his reply. His description is as follows:

"The standard man is erect, wide-awake, with happy disposition and good health and rather fine features. He will make a good husband.

"The formula of Adam was 114 pounds of water and 28 pounds of red clay mixed in. Goliath was nine feet nine and a half inches in stature. King Saul stood 7 feet in his boots. Three hundred years ago the average standard of the English soldier was 5 feet, and one half inches. The average stature of the human race is now five feet, five inches and five eighths. Extensive observations were made in 1862. Over 4,000 taken in England, Germany and France are of about the same standard, as are the Americans.

"The standard weight is 140 pounds. The bust should be about 37 or 38 inches. When arms are extended the measure should be the same as the stature, from tip of fingers. The lower extremities should correspond in proportion. Short legs indicate riches and soft bones, irregular teeth, and such are signs of a weak constitution. Waist should correspond with bust.

The Head.

"Around the base of the brain, the standard man's head should measure about twenty-two inches; over the head from the top of one ear to the other, twelve inches; from the occipital spine to the top of the nose, twelve and a half to thirteen inches. Men with short legs will have short measure on the head, and do not make desirable husbands. A miser will measure about ten and a half inches over the top of the head.

Ears Indicate Character.

"Where the ears stand out, and the opening is low down, a destructive nature is indicated. The development of the brain pushes the ears down. All the women who have been tried for murder recently have had that type of ear.

"The nose of the standard man should be prominent at the bridge and square cut. If the nose is flat, nostrils widened, upper lip short and teeth projecting, it indicates a deficiency of nutrition in the maxillary bone (upper jaw). People of that type generally suffer from catarrh and cold damp feet.

"Thick lips indicate a thick skull and coarseness of brain. Those with sandy or red hair are very warm lovers. Black hair belongs to the osses temperament—the bilious or morose temperament—with very strong bones, strong joints and great endurance. Abraham Lincoln was an example of this type."

Treating Bruises.

In the treatment of contusions with extensive discoloration of the skin, if olive oil be applied freely without rubbing the discoloration will quickly disappear. Absorbent cotton may be soaked in the oil and applied. If the skin is broken a little boric acid should first be applied over the abrasion. A black eye thus treated can be rendered normal in a few hours, especially if the oil be applied warm.

VISITS JANESVILLE SEEKING DAUGHTER

Lillian Muldoon, Seventeen Year Old Daughter of H. F. Muldoon of Darlington Drops From Sight.

In search of his seventeen year old daughter, Lillian, who has been missing from her home since August 17, H. F. Muldoon of Darlington came to this city last night and conferred with the police hoping that he might gain some clue that would lead to her location. Lillian boarded a train at Darlington on the afternoon of the seventeenth, telling no one where she was going, and she has not been heard from since. Her parents hoped for her return up to last Monday, but then her father notified the Milwaukee police. The girl's mother is prostrated, and her two younger brothers are almost constantly crying for sister.

Mr. Muldoon is unable to account for his daughter's disappearance.

He says she did not cut her hair, or any of the things which are said to lead girls astray. Lillian is a brunette, about five feet, 112 pounds, and last seen she wore a pink dress and carried only a black paper parcel. She had but little money.

Chief Appleby thought that possibly Lillian might be one of the two girls picked up in Chicago, who said they had come from Wisconsin, and telephoned the Chief of Detectives there, but up to late today he had received no response. The two girls gave their names as Della Brown and Laura Paschke. They refused to say what town they came from.

DINNER STORIES

A gentleman with a well-fed appearance, who had motored over from the nearest town to deliver his lecture, "The Art of Getting On," in the village schoolroom, concluded with a fine burst. "The successful man is the man who strives persistently. His motto is 'Push' and keep pushing," for by that and that alone he reaches his goal.

Before the audience made much headway the back got in a laugh that might have come from a megaphone. The lecturer, "aid up his hand for silence."

"You, too, my friend, must have to push," he commenced.
"So will you, I reckon," interrupted the small man; "there is half an en kids pinching the gasoline out of your motor car to light a bonfire."

Twined & Cheviot, tailors, wrote to Livingtons Bistron as follows:

"We must have something on account by Saturday next—what can we count on?"

And Mr. Bistron promptly replied: "Ever try an adding machine?"

Gentleman (who has just picked up a $5 bill to tramp who claimed it)—But how can you prove it belongs to you?

Tramp—Why, boss, boss, you can see for yourself—I've got a hole in me pocket!

"Even a policeman can't arrest the Night of time," said the funny man.

"Oh, I don't know," rejoined the matter-of-fact person. "Only this morning I saw a policeman enter a side door and stop a few minutes."

There had been a quarrel between two Western editors. But Smith got the best of Brown unquestionably when Brown, who owned a small farm, bought a mule. Smith printed a paragraph about this purchase and headed it "Extraordinary Case of Self-Possession."

"My son is not what you would call musically inclined," said the fond mother, indicating the languid, poetic young creature who lolled beside her, "and yet I am anxious to have him take piano lessons."

The dean of the conservatoire rubbed his chin thoughtfully as he surveyed the sad young man.

"You see," she continued, "Percy's so delicate I think the exercise will be good for him."

Successful indeed had been the village concert, which was now almost concluded. The one rift in the late was the pianist, who had patronized the lunch rather too freely.

At last the far-famed bass got up to take his turn. His voice fell upon that ancient classic:

"Rocked in the cradle of the deep, I lay me down in peace to sleep."

But the pianist, so overcome with emotion—and a lunch—hung on the final note so long as to rouse the vocalist's anger.

"Look here," at last shouted the irate bass, "whom do you take me for? Rip Van Winkle?"

He had returned home in the evening, tired and ready for a restful hour or two.

"John, my love," said his little wife, sweetly, "did you post that letter I gave you this morning?"

"Yes, my pet," said John, hiding his conscience-stricken face behind the newspaper.

"Well, what is your answer?" still more sweetly.

"What is what?" gasped John.

"What is your answer, dear?" said his little wife, clearly. "That letter was addressed to you."

"Addressed to me?" exclaimed John. "I didn't see it."

And then, like a fool, he fell into the trap and produced the letter from his pocket to see. The envelope was not addressed to him; but a long and severe lecture was, shortly after.

A school-teacher, who was giving a lesson on "The Feeding of Children," was interrupted by one of his pupils.

"Please, sir," he said, "Johnny says he knows a baby that was brought up on elephant's milk, and it gained ten pounds in weight every day."

"James ought not to tell you such rubbish," said the teacher. "Whose baby was it that was brought up on elephant's milk?"

"Please, sir," answered Jimmy, "it was the elephant's."

Nature.

The best definition of Nature is perhaps Mill's in his "Three Essays on Religion." In that most able and interesting work Mill says: "Nature is a collective name for all facts, actual and possible, or a name for the Mode, partly known to us and partly unknown, in which all things take place."

Continuing, Mill says: "The nature of a thing means its entire capacity of existing phenomena. As the nature of any given thing is the aggregate of its powers and properties, so Nature, in the abstract, is the aggregate of the powers and properties of all things."

Fads and Fashion

New York, Aug. 28.—The displays in the large shops are beginning to show more clearly the trend of fashion for autumn and now give a fairly good idea of the styles which will probably be worn during the coming season. The new pleated skirts, while showing increased measure, still come within the two-and-one-half yard limit. A variety of pleats is shown, the accordion and machine pleated styles being used in many of the smartest models, while the shallow side pleats and flatly pressed box pleats are other styles coming in for a large share of favor.

The machine pleats are so shallow and flatly pressed that they do not fly to any extent, and for this reason they require no staying underneath. With the side and box pleats it is necessary to have tapes fastened to the pleats at intervals so that the straight line will be retained.

Pleats are used for the section below the knees, the top having paniers and tunics. Pleats are also used for whole skirts. Groups of pleats are inserted at intervals around the skirt, bottom, and pleated panels are placed at the side, back or front. There is no section of the skirt in which pleats cannot be introduced effectively. Some of them waists show fine pleated sections not only for the back and the front portions, but for the sleeves as well.

The new school year is about to begin and mothers of school-going daughters are busy preparing their daughters' wardrobes for the fall and winter season. There is no more satisfactory fabric for the school girl than navy blue serge, and a frock of this sort, with an alternate frock of plaid, woolen, or a mohair frock crumpled with braid, should stand by the school girl very sturdily for the fall and winter terms. The blue and green broken plaids are very attractive when made up with pipings of plain colored silk, a few gilt or nickel buttons being added for the sake of youthful gaiety. Smart little frocks are shown in the girls' departments of the large shops, made of black and white checked moiré, with cuffs, collar and deep revers of black satin, a pleated frill of white batiste running down the front inside the satin revers. Half a dozen fresh frills come with the frock so that the school-girl may be always fresh and dainty. A black patent leather belt finishes this neat and effective mohair school frock.

Most of the blue serge models are made in two-piece effect, with a straight, simple skirt, short enough to show the neat buttoned boot, and a belted Norfolk waist opening at the neck over a chemise of tucked lawn or batiste. These belted waists are girl, for they have a breezy, boyish suggestion that is fetching in the extreme. Sometimes the Norfolk is finished with a sailor collar opening in a V over the throat.

A very attractive little belted frock, which might be copied easily in the home sewing room, was exhibited in a Fifth Avenue window the other day. Skirt and jacket blouse were of the inestimable navy blue serge, the skirt being quite straight and narrow in line, but having considerable width for all that, by reason of two deep interturning pleats set down either side seam. Over these pleats as far as the knee were stitched an inch-wide strap of the serge ending in a pointed tab. The pleats, without interfering with the modish slimmness of the little skirt, would afford plenty of comfortable room for long tramps across country, for tennis or other active sports. The jacket blouse had no pleats and no fancy collar. It was a simple, roomy affair with long shoulder lines and large armholes, buttoned down the center front under a stitched flap and falling in a rounded-off peplum below a wide leather belt. A black satin sailor collar of very moderate size, a small black satin neckbow and narrow, turned-back satin cuffs finished the blouse in simple, girlish manner.

Never before has the schoolgirl possessed a coat so eminently satisfying in every respect as the rough and ready Mackinaw, with its boyish cut, its big pockets and wide collar, which may be turned up around the throat and chin in inclement weather. These coats are made of rough worsteds, vicunas and fringed blanket cloth—the fringed models being especially smart if a trifle more high priced than the ordinary belted styles. Some Mackinaws of bold plaid material have hoods at the back which may be turned up over the head and face on stormy days, but whatever the individual style features, the adable Mackinaw has always the big patch pockets, into which the hands may be thrust comfortably as one tramps about the campus.

There are also mannish overcoats for the schoolgirl, almost a reproduction of a youth's overcoat in their straight, tailored lines, roomy shoulders, slashed pocket openings and regulation coat sleeves and collar. No fanciful reverse, no conspicuous buttons on these overcoats, and the material is usually some mannish worsted mixture in an invisible checked or plaid pattern.

Gray in all its shades and tones figures very prominently among the best of the new stuffs, toning down more vivid colors or in itself color or two tones of the one color. Many of the brighter colors of the new season, while not mixed frankly with gray, seem to have a softening dash of gray in their composition, a grayish gloom, one might call it, and mixtures in which gray figures openly are legion. This is especially true of the wool stuffs for tailored wear and both these materials and some of the smartest velvets for street wear are made to have the effect of gray by a sprinkling mixture of black and white. The taupe shades lose none of their vogue and deserve their continued popularity; for this brownish gray in all its shades has a peculiarly refined air and is very generally becoming, a thing that cannot be said for the iron, dinder, steel and silver gray tones.

Taupe is dark enough to be satisfactory without somberness and has enjoyed the distinction of not appealing to the mob that likes mass spectacular coloring and when choosing a dark frock is fairly sure to choose black because the startling possibilities of black are almost unlimited. Nothing can be more distinguished more chic, than black in some of its aspects, but the woman who wants to attract attention can achieve her purpose more effectively through certain treatments of black than by dressing herself in crimson or orange. This is not true of taupe, however, and that fact has kept the latter color fairly exclusive in other seasons, despite its popularity. But there are indications that it will be rather too much in evidence for exclusiveness during the coming season. Last spring it was taken up very generally for the one-piece trotting and many models found their way into the shops. Still, cleverly handled, this color will undoubtedly retain its distinctive smartness through the coming season.

WILL TRAVEL 5,000 MILES TO SEE PLAY

Miss Marjorie Rambeau.

Miss Marjorie Rambeau, actress, will travel 5,000 miles to see a play. Late in October she will leave Salt Lake City, where she is now playing in stock, and journey to New York. Arrived in New York she will immediately take ship for England. Arrived in London she will tackle it to the Drury Lane theater. There she will witness a performance of "Everywoman." Within forty-eight hours thereafter she will set sail for America.

Miss Rambeau has been engaged to play the title role in "Everywoman" this season, and her manager thinks she ought to see the part acted before she herself undertakes it. That accounts for the long trip.

Senator Charles E. Townsend, of Michigan, will be one of the busiest Republican orators throughout the campaign. Thomas Hill, a Lawrenceville (N. J.) farmer, has trained a bull to run a treadmill, which pumps water, churns butter and does all of that kind of work. The bull, Hill says, beats a windmill or gasoline engine.

The Beet Sugar Industry.
Beet sugar making is as yet an infant industry, with $130,000,000 invested. It is not old enough in this country to be developed without protection. But there are many indications that tend to show how we may some day compete with the world in the production of beet sugar.

AN OLD REMEDY

Beef, Iron and Wine is one of the good old remedies that has outlived a score of patent tonics, reasonable in price, a satisfactory tonic, appetizer and mild stimulant. There is nothing better for that tired, worried, listless feeling or run-down condition of the system after illness of any kind. It tones the whole system, stimulates digestion, gives you appetite, is a good iron tonic for weak, pale children or old people, far more effective than malt extracts or so-called wine of cod liver oil that depend upon their stimulants alone. Beef, Iron and Wine tones and sustains, it assists nature to recuperate, it's a food to the sick and nursing mothers.

Mr. Pfennig, our Graduate Pharmacist and Chemist, prepares our Beef, Iron and Wine. It's always fresh, made from the very best extract of beef, wholesome, properly aged sherry wine and soluble iron.

We don't sell ready-made, hand-made, factory-manufactured Beef, Iron and Wine. We believe and know that medicines should be compounded only by the experienced and scientifically trained.

Try a bottle of our Beef, Iron and Wine as made by Mr. Pfennig, 75c a full pint. Note its wholesome taste and invigorating effect. You will be more than satisfied. Get it at the Badger Drug Co., Milwaukee and River Sts. The drug store that makes a specialty of drugs.

Concrete Facts.
Pulverized wood is sometimes mixed with cement for making what is known as wood concrete. This is lighter than concrete that is made with sand. Straw, seaweed and hay are also pulverized for use instead of wood. The pulverized product is very much like sawdust. The chief advantage of wood concrete over ordinary concrete is that it is soft enough to permit of walls being driven into it.

Her Temperament.
An Atchison girl was not looking well and her mother said to her: "It is your temperament which keeps you feeling badly." The girl walked around in a happy dream; she felt she was different from other people; she had "temperament." Her mother came to her in a day or two with an ugly yellowish brown mixture and said: "Take this surpurr and molasses; you have a bilious temperament." The girl collapsed.—Atchison Globe.

EDGERTON

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Edgerton, Aug. 29.—The annual picnic of the American Society of Equity, held yesterday in Murray's grove, west of the city, was not as largely attended as in former years. Rain in the morning kept many away, while on the other hand farmers are too busy at the present time to take vacations. The program in the morning consisted of music by the Edgerton concert band and at noon a basket picnic dinner was given. About 1:30 o'clock Robert Livick introduced Hon. L. E. Gettle of this city, who delivered the address. Mr. Gettle spoke for about an hour and dwelt largely upon favor of the income tax, although he stated that he was in favor of making some amendments. A ball game, boys' and girls' foot races, etc., closed the day's event.

TACT.

Popularity Papers—Being the Fourth of a Few Little Talks on the Ingredients of Popularity.

ONE OF the most important characteristics for the person who wants to be popular to possess is tact, which has been most cleverly defined as the fine art of picking things up by the handles.

The tactless person is never popular. No matter how good his intentions, if any one goes about snatching things up without heed to their handles and stepping on folks' mental corns, people will not be glad to see him coming.

Besides, I do not think that tactlessness ever does co-exist with really good intentions, or at any rate with any grave effort to put these intentions into action. You sometimes hear people say, "Oh dear, I'm so unlucky. I always say the wrong thing. I wish I were tactful, and I try to be, but somehow I seem to put my foot in it. I'm just unlucky."

What a very queer idea of luck some people have. "There, I forgot and spoke about Grace's marrying that divorced man," says one of these unlucky (?) people, "and I meant to be careful not to say anything like that because Mrs. R. is so sensitive about her daughter's getting divorced."

If this woman had really left her neighbor's trouble, if she had been truly sympathetic, if she had been thinking first of her friend and then of herself, would she have made such a "break"? Indeed no. Tactlessness is just thoughtlessness, and thoughtlessness is just selfishness. In the last analysis, tact goes back to the first ingredient in the porridge of popularity—unselfishness.

Tact manifests itself in a thousand different ways. It shows itself in making its possessor sensitive to other people's moods; in telling him when to be silent and when to speak; in teaching him what topics to avoid and what topics will be particularly welcome; in making him respectful instead of wearing, and in innumerable other ways. And under all these manifestations there is one moving spirit—the spirit of selflessness.

People without tact think they cannot acquire it, but if they are willing to try to alter their natures, they may learn this finest of fine arts.

And in the study of it, they will need but one short text book—the Golden Rule.

A WOMAN'S OBSERVATIONS
Edna K. Woolley

his family. She met him, alone. Then he revealed to her that he had never divorced her and that she was not the legal wife of the man who was father to the child she knew was coming. In addition, this kind and considerate husband brutally attacked the woman he had so fondly wronged. Then she shot him.

What would YOU have done to such a man?

Didn't he deserve what he got?

Wasn't his punishment altogether too light for a creature of his kind?

Hasn't a wife the moral right to resent such injuries even at the hands of a husband?

Has a man the right to insult and mistreat his wife, to ruin her good name and still go scot-free?

Evidently the Cincinnati jury didn't think so.

Those twelve men know in their hearts what they would have done to such a man if they'd had a chance, and in their pity they freed the woman for killing her husband.

The woman admitted killing the man, giving as her defense that he had deliberately led her to believe he had divorced her, upon which belief heard of her marriage and happiness, lured her to see him upon an urgent plea that she restore peace in

THRUSH

Sore Mouth.

This disease is of such common occurrence and the source of so much annoyance that it will be well to look into its cause and prevention. Few, perhaps understand its significance and do not connect its occurrence to any fault on their part.

It is common in infants of the first two or three months, (rarely seen after six months), and in all frequently occurs in infants that are born with low vitality and those suffering with stomach and bowel diseases, malnutrition, marasmus, (a gradual wasting of the tissue) or other wasting diseases.

It is an inflammation of the mucous membrane of the cheeks and tongue and characterized by the appearance of small white flakes or larger patches. The flakes resemble deposits of coagulated milk, but on being forcibly removed may leave a bleeding surface. There is little danger of it being mistaken for diphtheria since diphtheria shows other distinctive symptoms. The absence of presence of diphtheria in the neighborhood will assist in the diagnosis.

It is due to the uncleanness of the mouth, the mothers' nipples, of rubber nipples of bottles, cloths, fingers, etc. In fact, the existence of the disease usually means that someone, somewhere has been negligent and unclean. The fact is, since I come to think of it, so much of disease, whether it be of infants, children or adults, is due to filth, uncleanness and neglect.

Infection may come from another patient by means of a rubber nipple or cloth which has been used for the infected mouth, or from the unclean fingers of the mother or nurse.

Thrush if not in itself a dangerous disease, except in very rare instances. In a feeble and delicate infant it may be a serious complication by interfering with the taking of sufficient nourishment.

Thrush is not in itself a dangerous most every case by due attention to cleanliness. Cleanliness of the mouth, nipples, rubber nipples, bottles, finger, cloths, etc. Nothing should be put into the baby's mouth that is not clean, and nothing should be put there that is not needed.

The mother should wash her nipples before and after nursing the child. When convenient this washing should be of a solution of boric acid or alcohol 50 per cent.

If the baby is bottle fed, all rubber nipples should be kept in a solution of borax or a solution of soda.

In case the baby already has the thrush, begin at once to observe the suggestions mentioned above. Cleanse the baby's mouth after every feeding or nursing with a solution of borax or baking soda. Perhaps the best thing for this is a proprietary preparation known as Calendine.

Cleansing of the mouth is best with a swab of cotton on a stick. The finger may be used in the same manner.

If the baby is bottle fed reduce the amount of sugar in its food and if at all feasible, substitute barley water for milk for a day or two; if milk issued add a little lime water to each feeding.

an who had given such a husband his just deserts.

Moreover, this woman isn't pretty. She doesn't possess any particular charm. She is ignorant. So the jury wasn't coerced by a clever woman or a pretty face. It simply delivered what it considered a just opinion. And I do not think, for a moment, that a jury of women would have rendered a different verdict.

Women would have pitied their sister fully as much as did the jury of men, though possibly sheltered women who have known no wrong, may not have understood as well as the men, the cruelty and brutishness of this particular husband. It is the woman who is sheltered and protected by those about her, who is cruellest to her mistreated sisters, for she doesn't understand. But even such a woman would have given thought to the innocent little life to come, and would not have punished the babe for its mother's act.

IN LIFE'S small things be reasonable and great. To keep thy muscles trained, knowest thou when to measure takes or when she'll say to thee:

CHERRY TIME.

The cherry pie has been, is and always will be, the sine qua non of pie excellence. The luscious, juicy fruit stands second to none for delicious eating. To really know and enjoy full beauty of the fruit, one must ride under and pick the fruit from the beautiful trees in southern Idaho, where the meaty fruit grows so large and abundantly. The old trees are as large as an ordinary shade tree and carry tons of cherries.

Spiced cherries are a delicacy which adds to any table. The proportions are the same as those used for currants, seven pounds of fruit to five pounds of sugar, three tablespoons each of cinnamon and cloves tied in a bag and cooked in a pint of vinegar. Cook all together an hour and a half very slowly.

If you fail to get cherries to can, don't miss buying a few boxes of the large, dark western cherries for cherry olives. It is a most appetizing relish for meats.

Pit the cherries and just cover with vinegar, and let stand over night, drain off the vinegar and add an equal weight of the cherries in sugar. Stir until dissolved, and set away in a covered jar for winter use. The vinegar may, with the addition of sugar, make a good shrub for a hot weather drink.

A method of canning which is very successful is that of putting the pitted fruit into a large bowl, add an equal bulk of sugar, measure for measure; stir, and keep in the ice chest for twenty-four hours, then place in sterilized cans, seal tight and place on the cold cellar floor or keep in the back part of the ice chest if there is room. The secret of keeping fruit this way is having the temperature unvaryingly cold. Cherries canned in this way are fresh fruit and if thoroughly mixed with the sugar, keep without fermentation. Strawberries, currants and raspberries, in fact all fruits that can be crushed and saturated with sugar, keep equally well.

A cherry pie made from such fruit cannot be told from the freshly-picked fruit.

DIET AND HEALTH HINTS

By DR. T. J. ALLEN Food Specialist

SIMPLE DIET AND PHYSICAL ENDURANCE.

The superiority of the simple diet as a means of physical endurance has been again demonstrated by F. H. Grubb of the British Vegetarian Cycling club, who rode a hundred miles in less than five hours. During the past year most of the long distance cycling records have been won by non-flesh eaters. The exclusion of flesh meat is the first step in the improvement of the dietary for efficiency, physical or mental, and for the preservation of health, though there is not yet much evidence to show that the benefit from a simple diet, furnishing all the elements of nutrition in the simplest form and with the least expenditure of energy for digestion, is as great in mental as in physical work. If the American contestants in the coming Marathon races were to include the best system of dietetic training in their preparation for the contest, the records would be improved, as it is now well known that many of the athletic records in Europe were made as a result of following Dr. Hail's suggestions. The English champion tennis player has given credit for the remarkable improvement in his record to improving his diet.

HEART AND HOME TALKS

BY BARBARA BOYD

For the Eye of Some Husbands

THIS article is intended for men; not all men, just some men. Unfortunately I can't label it, so that the very special man I intended to read it will read it. A lot may read it for whom it is not intended. But it won't hurt them. They have a virus in their veins that will inoculate them against all wear and tear to their nervous system which it might cause. And for fear this may frighten off those for whom it is intended, let me say right here, that for these it is a tonic that will waken them all over, stir their blood and make them new beings.

And before we make the get-away, just a word to some wives. If your husband is the kind who doesn't read this sort of stuff, lay the paper around, carelessly, where his eye may fall upon it. Men have just as much curiosity as women.

And now we're off. There's a question I want to ask some men. Would your wife have to die for you to appreciate her?

Just mull that over a bit. Would she have to step out, and the house become very quiet and lonesome and dusty, and the table only half arranged, and the food poorly cooked for you to fully realize all she does for you, all she means to you?

Would you have to hunt here, there and everywhere for your clean clothes, and wear socks with holes in them, and not find any towels, to appreciate how much and how unobtrusively she ministers to your every little comfort?

Would you have to wrestle with appalling bills, and long for a cup of good, hot coffee, and hunger for the delicious pie she makes, to comprehend how deftly and efficiently she runs the household machinery?

Because if you would, it's time to shake yourself a bit and stop being the complacent, unappreciative being you are. It is time to stop taking all these things for granted as being your due simply because you married her. You have no inherent and inalienable right to them. They are yours because she is an unselfish, conscientious woman. But that doesn't give you the right to take them as your own personal belongings.

If she would have to be carried out of your home, her tired hands folded on her breast and her face calm and peaceful, for you to discover these things, don't wait for that time to come. Discover them now, right now. And show that you have discovered them by showing some appreciation. Do as much for her as she is doing for you. Remember, she is thinking of your comfort every minute of the day, and ministering to it. Return the compliment. Think of her comfort in the same minute detailed way that she does of yours. And say the word and give the caress that shows appreciation.

And here endeth the preachment.

Barbara Boyd.

Harrietta D. Grand

boiled or baked is made without suet or molasses.

Make a crust with a pint and a half of flour, two teaspoons of baking powder, one saltspoon of salt, two tablespoons of shortening, and enough cold milk to make a soft dough. Have the plums pitted and sweetened as directed in preceding recipe. Roll out the paste half an inch thick; cover thickly with the fruit and add more sugar if it is very tart. Roll up, like a jelly-cake, from one end pinch the sides of the folds, roll together to prevent the escape of the fruit and juice.

Wet the pudding cloth in hot water, squeeze dry and dredge with flour on the inner side. Baste this around the roll and boil in plenty of water an hour and a half or bake forty-five minutes.

Serve hot with hard sauce. Plum Pudding—Make the crust as directed in the recipe above but use three tablespoons of shortening to a quart of flour. Use damson plums, as the gages and larger plums have too coarse a skin. Roll out the paste and cut into oblong pieces; on each piece place a spoonful of the sweetened fruit (seeded of course). Bring up the sides of the paste and shape it into a dumpling.

Have popover pans well buttered and place a popover in each section. Bake three-quarters of an hour in a moderate oven. When done brush over with beaten egg and return to the oven to glaze.

These should be eaten hot with a sweet rich sauce.

WOMAN ESCAPES DREADFUL OPERATION

How She Was Saved From Surgeon's Knife by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mogadore, Ohio.—"The first two years I was married I suffered so much from female troubles and bearing down pains that I could not stand on my feet long enough to do my work. The doctor said I would have to undergo an operation, but my husband wanted me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound first. I took three bottles and it made me well and strong and I avoided a dreadful operation. I now have two fine healthy children, and I cannot say too much about what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me."—Mrs. LEE MANGES, R. F. D. 10, Mogadore, Ohio.

Why will women take chances with an operation or drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

For this try years it has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has restored the health of thousands of women who have been troubled with such ailments as displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, etc.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Heart and Home Problems

by MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson:—(1) How can I clean a white felt hat? (2) Does peroxide grow eyelashes? (3) Is a solution of boric acid to brighten the eyes injurious. (4) What is a good flesh reducer?

Rutr. (1) Cover hat with paste made of gasoline and cornmeal. Let paste remain on for a day or two, then brush out thoroughly. (2) No. (3) Do not use anything to brighten your eyes, except under a reputable physician's direction. Good health and good humor are the best eye-brighteners I know of. (4) Exercise and diet are the only sure flesh reducers. Do not eat pastries, candies, potatoes or any starchy foods. Drink the juice of a lemon in a little water every day.

Dear Mrs. Thompson:—I have been keeping company with a young man six months. I like him more than I tell him. He is very kind and respectful towards me. Do you think it proper and good taste to kiss him good night, which he asks me, in respect and politeness, to do? He wants to marry me, which I intend to do when my responsibilities are lightened at home.

KATE. If you are engaged kiss him, of course! A man has a perfect right to expect a good-night kiss, and perhaps a few other kisses, from the girl who has promised to marry him. Dear Mrs. Thompson:—(1) How can I stop the boys from teasing me? (2) What is a good remedy for headache? (3) When are a boy and a girl old enough to go together? (4) What are the best foods to eat to make the muscles strong? (5) Is it wrong to play ball on Sunday? If so, why isn't it wrong to play other games? (6) What are some nice games to play to entertain company? (7) Who should speak first when meeting—boy or girl? (8) Isn't it correct to take hold of the girl's arm to help her? (9) What must a boy say and do when she "flies off the handle?"

"BUSHNELL" C. B. T. (1) Take it good-naturedly, and cease back when you get a chance. (2) It depends what kind of a headache it is. If you have it often, see a doctor. Perhaps you need to wear glasses. Do not take headache medicines unless prescribed by a doctor. (3) The girl should be at least 18, and the boys two or three years older. (4) All foods are good if not too rich. Outdoor exercise will build up your muscles. (5) I do not think so, though many disagree with me. (6) Send to a bookstore for a book of indoor games. (7) The girl; but if they are good friends it isn't necessary to be formal. (8) If she really needs assistance. (9) Keep his own temper. The soda fountain drink you mention would be harmful taken in daily quantities such as you mention.

DAILY READER. Dear Mrs. Thompson:—How can I keep my hands soft and white?

Soak them in hot water before retiring at night, washing them clean and using a nail brush to scrub off any stubborn spots. Then rub olive oil well into the skin and put on clean chamois gloves for the night. Cut off the tips of the glove fingers.

During the day, each time after having the hands in water, apply a little of this lotion: One tablespoonful flaxseed steeped in half pint boiling water; pour off liquid and add to it 1 teaspoon witch hazel, 1 teaspoon bay rum, 10 cents worth of glycerine and, last, 5 cents worth of benzoin. Keep this up for a few days and you will find a wonderful improvement in your hands.

For stains use peroxide, or lemon juice.

Long before six she was dressed, and sitting before the mirror in her room she laid on the last perfecting touches with a short stick of hard red substance and a circular piece of mossy-looking white stuff, which she rubbed with a rotary motion round and round her face. Her new dress of raspberry pink crape betrayed the hand of an expert in its gracefully-falling folds and the elegance with which it outlined her slim, long-waisted shape. Her artificially-reddened hair waved back from her forehead in glossy ripples; her face, all lines and hollows, rubbed from it, looked fresh and youthful. With the subdued light falling on her through the silk and paper lamp shades, she looked a very pretty woman, the darkness of her long, brilliant eyes thrown into higher relief by the whiteness of her powdered face.

She was tremendously nervous. Every sound caused her to start and move to that part of the parlor whence she could look down the long passageway to the stair-head. Large bunches of greenery were massed here in the angles of the hall and stood in the corners of the sitting-room. Bowls filled with violets and roses were set on the table and mantelpiece, and the scent of these flowers, sweet and delicate, mingled with the crude, powerful perfume that the woman's draperies exhaled with every movement. At intervals she ran into her bedroom, seized the little, round, soft wad of white and rubbed it over her face with a quick concentric movement, drawing her upper lip down as she did so, which gave to her countenance with its anxious eyes an exceedingly comical expression.

It was nearly seven o'clock when the bell rang. With a last hasty look in the glass, she ran down the passageway to the stair-head. It was necessary to descend a few steps to a turn, on the stairs from whence the lever that opened the door could be worked. As she stood on the small landing, thrown out in bright relief by a mass of dark leafage that stood in the angle of the wall, the door opened and Dominick entered. He looked up and saw her standing there, gaily dressed, a brilliant, animated figure, smiling down at him.

"Ah, Berny," he said in a quiet, unemotional voice, "is that you?"

It was certainly not an enthusiastic greeting. A sensitive woman would have been shriveled by it, but Berny was not sensitive. She had realized from the start that she would probably have to combat the lingering surliness left by the quarrel. As Dominick ascended, her air of smiling welcome was marked by a bland cheery unconsciousness of any past unpleasantness. She was not, however, as unconscious as she looked. She noted his heaviness of demeanor, the tired expression of his lifted face. He came up the stairs slowly, not yet being completely recovered, and it added to the suggestion of reluctance, of difficulty and spiritless approach, that seemed to encompass him in an unseen yet distinctly felt aura.

As he rose on a level with her, she stretched out her hands and, laying them on his shoulders, drew him toward her and kissed him. The coldness of his cheek, damp with the foggy night air, chilled the caress and she drew back from him, not so securely confident in her debonair, smiling assurance. He patted her lightly on the shoulder by way of greeting and said:

"How are you? All right?"

"Oh, I'm all right," she answered with brisk, determined sprightliness. "You're the one to ask about. You walk stiff, still. How are your feet?"

She was glad to turn her eyes away from his face. It looked very tired, and the slight smile with which he had greeted her stayed only on his lips did not extend to his fatigued eyes. He was evidently angry still.

angry and unforgiving, and that he should be so, when she was so anxious to forget the ugly episode of the quarrel and be gay and friendly again, dashed her spirits and made her feel unsure of herself and upset. She was determined, however, to show him that she had forgotten all about it, and as he turned the angle of the stairway she thrust her hand inside his arm and walked up beside him. They might have been a happy married couple, reunited after an absence, slowly coming up the stairs together arm in arm.

A few minutes later they were seated opposite each other at dinner. The little table glowed and gleamed, all Berny's bravery of silver and glass mustered for its adornment. The choice and delicate dinner began with a soup that Dominick especially liked, a fact which Berny hoped he would notice and mention. She was one of those women who have an unfailing memory for what people like to eat; a single expression of preference would remain in her mind for years. Dominick and she had not lived together for a month before she knew everything in the way of food he liked or disliked. When she was annoyed with him, or especially bitter against his mother, she would order nothing but dishes that he did not care for, and when she was in a more friendly mood, as tonight, she would take pains and time to arrange a menu composed of those he preferred. He usually did not notice these rewards and punishments, but Berny always thought he did and was "too stubborn," as she expressed it to herself, to show that he was affected by them.

She observed to-night that he neither remarked, nor seemed to relish his food, but she made no comment, talking on in a breathless, lively way, asking questions of his trip, his accident, and the condition of his feet, as though there were no mortifying recollections connected with the cause of his sudden departure. Her only indication of embarrassment was a tendency to avoid anything like a moment of silence and to fly from one subject to another. Dominick answered her questions and told her of his wanderings with a slow, careful exactness. Save in the freezing of his feet, which matter he treated more lightly than it deserved, he was open with her in recounting the small happenings of what he called "his holiday," from the time of his walk from Rocky Bar to the day of his departure from Antelope.

They had progressed through the fish to the entree when her questions passed from his personal wanderings and adventures to his associates. She had been very anxious to get to this point, as she wanted to know what degree of intimacy he had reached with the Bonanza King. Several times already she had tried to divert the conversation toward that subject, but it had been deflected by the young man, who seemed to find less personal topics more to his taste. Now she was advancing openly upon it, inquiring about the snow-bound group at Perley's, and awarding to any but the august name for which her ears were pricked a perfunctory attention. It was part of the natural perversity of man that Dominick should shy from it and expend valuable time on descriptions of the other prisoners.

"There was an actor there," he said, "snowed in on his way to Sacramento, a queer-looking chap, but not bad."

"An actor?" said Berny, trying to look interested. "What did he act?"

"Melodrama, I think. He told me he played all through the northwest and east as far as Denver. The poor chap was caught up there and was afraid he was going to lose a Sacramento engagement that I guess meant a good deal to him. He was quite interesting, been in the Klondike in the first rush and had some queer stories about the early days up there."

Berny's indifferent glance became bright and fixed under the steady effect of sudden interest.

"Been in the Klondike?" she repeated. "What was his name?"

"Buford, James Defay Buford. He'd been an actor at the opera house at Dawson."

"Buford," said Berny, turning to place a helping of peas on the plate the Chinaman held toward her. "I never heard of him. I thought perhaps it might have been some actor I'd seen play. I'd like to know an actor in private life. They must be so different."

She ladled a second spoonful of peas on to her own plate and as she began to eat them, said:

"It must have been interesting having the Cannons up there. When I read in the paper that they were in Antelope too, I was awfully glad because I thought it would be such a good thing for you to get to know the old man well, as you would, snowed in that way together."

"I knew him before. My father and mother have been friends of his for years."

"I know that. You've often told me. But that's a different thing. I thought if he got to know you intimately and liked you, as he probably would," she glanced at him with a coquettish smile, but his face was bent over his plate—"why, then, something might come of it, something in a business way." She again looked at him, quickly, with sidelong investigation, to see how he took the remark. She did not want to irritate him by alluding to his small means, anyway on this night of reconciliation.

"It would be so useful for you to get solid with a man like Bill Cannon," she concluded with something of timidity in her manner.

Despite her caution, Dominick seemed annoyed. He frowned and gave his head an impatient jerk.

"Oh, there was nothing of that kind," he said hurriedly. "We were just snowed in at the same hotel. There was no question of intimacy or friendship about it, any more than there was between Judge Washburne and me, or even the actor."

Berny was exceedingly disappointed. Had the occasion been a less momentous one she would have expressed herself freely. In her mind she thought it was "just like Dominick" to have such an opportunity and let it go. A slight color deepened the artificial rose of her cheeks and for a moment she had to exert some control to maintain the silence that was wisdom. She picked daintily at her food while she wrestled with her irritation. Dominick showed no desire to resume the conversation, and a silence of some minutes' duration rested over them, until she broke it by saying with a resolute cheerfulness of tone:

"Rose Cannon was there, too, the paper said. I suppose you got to know her quite well?"

"I don't know. I saw a good deal of her. There was only one sitting-room and we all eat there. She was there with the others."

"Really, Berny, I Don't Know," Answered the Victim.

"What's she like?" said Berny, her curiosity on the subject of this spoiled child of fortune overcoming her recent annoyance.

"You've seen her," he answered, "you know what she looks like."

"I've never seen her to know who she was. I suppose I've passed her on the streets and at the theaters. Is she cordial and pleasant, or does she give herself airs because she's Bill Cannon's daughter?"

Dominick moved his feet under the table. It was difficult for him to answer Berny's questions politely.

"She doesn't give herself the least airs. She's perfectly simple and natural and kind."

"That's just what I've heard," his wife said, giving her head an agreeing wag. "They say she's just as easy and unassuming as can be. Did you think she was pretty when you saw her close to?"

"Really, Berny, I don't know," answered the victim in a tone of goaded patience. "She looks just the same close to as she does at a distance. I don't notice people's looks much. Yes, I suppose she's pretty."

"She has blonde hair," said Berny, leaning forward over her plate in the eagerness of her interest. "Did it look to you as if it was bleached?"
